Understanding Action Verbs and Linking Verbs

Before utilizing an action verb linking verb worksheet, it is essential to grasp the fundamental differences between these two verb categories. Action verbs express physical or mental actions performed by the subject, while linking verbs connect the subject to additional information without indicating action. Recognizing these differences supports accurate sentence construction and effective communication.

What Are Action Verbs?

Action verbs describe something that the subject does. They can convey physical movements or mental activities and are an active part of the sentence's predicate. Examples include words like "run," "jump," "think," and "write."

What Are Linking Verbs?

Linking verbs serve as connectors, linking the subject to a subject complement that describes or identifies it. Unlike action verbs, they do not show action but rather a state of being or condition. Common linking verbs include "am," "is," "are," "was," "were," "seem," and "become."
